

January 19, 2009

To whom it may concern:

I am more than happy to write a letter of recommendation for Steve Rodgers.

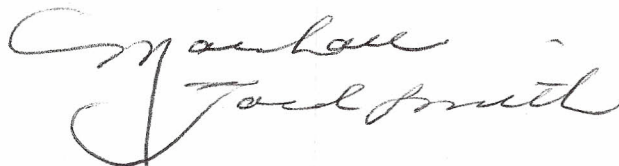

I have met many outstanding leaders in my life. Steve impresses me as one of the most dedicated leaders that I have ever met. He has a tireless work ethic and always strives to maximize benefit for his organization – even in the toughest of times.

Steve is an excellent communicator. He is gifted in his ability to inspire the people who work with him. He is also a person with a deep sense of values.

Along with doing a great job in his profession, Steve has a deep dedication to the community. He has gone out of his way to speak at our college (the students love him) and has mentored several students out of the goodness of his heart.

If you are looking for a leader, Steve Rogers is a great person to consider. His unique combination of business savvy and interpersonal skills will be hard to top.

Sincerely,

Marshall Goldsmith